Bulbs after Flowering.—L. G. C. London.—Bulbs rarely do as well in the second year as in the first, partly because they are built up for flowering by the bulb growers, partly because they are not given the right treatment. Bulbs after flowering should have flower-heads removed and be allowed to grow on until the leaves yellow and die down. They then need lifting, drying off under cool conditions and storing in a cool, dry atmosphere until replanting time. It pays to give the boost of a fertiliser after flowering.

THE RECTOR'S LETTER.

My dear people,

I am very grateful for the splendid generosity shown to me this Easter by my parishioners, and I offer my sincere thanks for the gift of the Easter offering in my four churches.

Quite a few people were away from home on Easter Day, and therefore, the number of communicants was slightly down on last year. Nevertheless, Easter Day was a glorious festival, and the churches were resplendent for our celebrations. I would like to thank all who helped in the provision of flowers and the decoration of the churches.

All our annual parochial church meetings have been held successfully, and few changes have been made in the elections of church officers. The most notable change took place at Everingham. Mr. Ernest Scaife, churchwarden for so long, has now left the parish and thus resigned his office. Colonel Phillips has been elected to serve in the capacity of Rector's Warden at Everingham.

The departure from Everingham of the Scaife family has broken a tie with the Parish Church which has existed for many years. It will be a very long time before we can get used to the idea that Mr. Scaife will be no longer there to ring the Church Bells and look after the Church clock. These jobs with many others, have been performed so lovingly and with such punctilious care for very many years by Mr. Scaife. Indeed, I have come to look upon our Church bells and clock as the personal property of Mr. Scaife, so well has he cared for them. To me and to many others, the sound of the bells and clock will always be associated with him and will always bring back very happy memories of a man, who, though beset with many handicaps in life, has served his Church in this parish so well and so loyally: an example, which many of us with less handicaps in life may well take to heart. We say thank you to Mr. Scaife and to his two sisters for the wonderful support they have always given to Everingham Parish Church. May God bless them all and grant them many happy years of their new life in Strensall. By the time this magazine is in print a presentation will have been made to Mr. Scaife, a token of our sincere appreciation for all that he and his sisters have done for us.

The swallows are here, the cuckoo cannot be far behind—I have not heard him yet (Apl 20th), the sun is shining—can it be that we are in for a repeat performance of last Summer? Let us hope so.

God bless you all,

Your friend and Rector,

D. BURNELL.

Village of pilgrimages, lost causes . . . of history

THE INSPIRING STORY OF EVERINGHAM

TO STOP a few miles north of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor, near Market Weighton, on the main Hull-York road, and turn down a little by-road almost obscured by the dry June dust thrown up by the intermittent passing of heavy lorries, is to slip into Everingham—and history. For this is truly a village of history, of pilgrimages, of lost causes re-echoing down the turbulent plains of ancient England.

Now it is a village at rest, a village in quiet retreat, slumbering among the lingering tokens of old gardens, bracken and narcissi.

Two mighty symbols of these turbulent generations remain—Everingham Park Hall, and the Catholic Church of Our Lady and St. Everilda.

Interwoven into these two buildings is the story of Everingham—a story that has gone into books and chronicles which now have an honoured place among 6,000 other books in the massive library of Everingham Hall, through whose windows is framed the lovely views of encircling parklands covering 153 acres.

MAJESTIC PORTRAITS

Decorative craftsmanship is everywhere in this hall—in the delightful plaque in the library showing a sleeping shepherd boy, in the majestic portraits that adorn the walls of the drawingrooms and lounges; in the massive fireplaces; in the arched frames and windows.

It is a house of mementoes, of memories, of storied names—Constables, Nithsdals, Maxwells, Marmadukes, Norfolks—a home of history.

Here, too, is, to give but one example, Lord Nithsdale's brass snuffbox dated 1732, and a Prayer Book given to him by Charles II and which he had with him in the dreaded Tower in 1715. Printed in 1649, on Page 30 there is an account of "His Majesty's (Charles I) repulse at Hull" when Sir John Hotham closed the city gates upon him.

In recent years some of the family heirlooms have gone to Arundel Castle, home of the Duke of Norfolk, who owns the hall. But priceless pictures and other historic ornaments remain in this hall of grandeur and old refinement.

ITALIAN CHURCH

This hall of noble memories, standing so close but so aloof from the busy modern highway as if it still had a tryst with the past, lies adjacent to the church, whose successive owners and relations have played so many coloured roles in the pageantry of the English and Scottish kingdoms.

Into the building of this church went all that was noble in old Italian craftsmanship. Some of the roof decorations are copied from those of St. Peter's Church in Rome.

Around the walls in niches are stone statues of the apostles and saints.

These are stone replicas of the original white marble statues specially made in Italy but lost in a shipwreck en route to this country.

The church, built in 1839 to celebrate Catholic emancipation, cost £50,000, a fabulous sum in those days. It has an impressive lofty interior, with a Lady Chapel, majestic in its grandeur and simplicity. Religious paintings and adornments beautifully designed, give the church elegance and poise and quiet detached dignity.

SENSE OF HISTORY

From its contemplative interior, as indeed from the hall itself, one senses, in these quiet surroundings the great heartbeat of history, echoing back through the centuries when monks in nearby cells guided travellers over the dreary wastelands that was Holme on Spalding Moor and surrounding areas, "beseeching Heaven's aid for their safety."

Much that is painful lies deep in the story of Everingham, but even the heartbreaks before, during and after the penal times failed to break the religious constancy of these villagers and those renowned families who owned the estates.

30,000 MEN

For was it not Sir Robert Constable, of Everingham, who formed the "Pilgrimage of Grace" when 30,000 men assembled at Market Weighton to march to Doncaster to petition Henry VIII "to rid himself of Thomas Cromwell who drove 10,000 monks from their monasteries and confiscated them."

It was a lost cause and for his part in it Constable was "to hang above the town" (Hull) so trymmed in chains that his boones will hang there for hundreds of years.

Mere snippets from the history of Everingham.

Today the church, in charge of Father Austen Pippet, parish priest of Everingham, looks after the spiritual needs of its 230 congregation.

In his presbytery I saw him at work printing his parish literature on his own machines—his happy hobby. Eighteen years at Everingham, he also supervises the religious instructions of his school, which also accommodates about 14 non-Catholic scholars.

NOW A CLUB

The great hall is now an hotel and country club, run by Mrs E. F. Bradley, whose husband, Maj. Bradley, died last month.

On lease from the Duke of Norfolk, Mrs Bradley, mother of four, has modernised the house, which now has 16 bedrooms, all centrally heated, up-to-date amenities such as TV, radio, and rest rooms, all tastefully furnished.

Visitors come from a wide area, together with frequent influx of Americans. The hotel is also popular for social functions, conferences and outings.

One special guest I talked to was Mrs Walter Bayne, who spent 35 years "1,000 miles up the Amazon." Mrs Bayne—"I'm Yorkshire born and bred"—is keeper of the swans on the nearby lake who come to her twice a day for their rations.

As I left this quiet spot it was evening; the wood pigeons were quiet and the leaves still. But the story of Everingham surged in my mind . . .

Both the little and the house will eventually pass to Lady Anne, but for the next few months her surroundings will be far from static. So that she can be close at hand to discuss the modernisation with her architect and builder, she has moved into a small cottage in the village at Everingham.

A Back-to-Front Life

LADY ANNE FITZALAN HOWARD, 25, eldest daughter of the Duke of Norfolk, is living in a back-to-front, upside-down world at present.

Back-to-front—because the mansion into which she will move soon is being switched round. The back door will replace the front door and vice versa at Everingham Park, Market Weighon, East Yorks.

Upside-down—because Lady Anne spends most days among the rubble and debris of buildings which have been demolished at the 18th century mansion.

"I don't know when we shall finally move in to my new home," she said yesterday, "but I hope it will be some time next year."

Wing demolished

Dressed in jeans, duffle-coat and sweater, Lady Anne added: "I shall only be furnishing five bedrooms on the first floor. One wing has been completely demolished and I hope the house will be similar to when it was built in the middle of the 18th century. At the moment I have no plans for the third floor.

The house has always belonged to the Norfolk family but the last member of the family to live there was the present Duke's mother, Baroness Herries, who died in 1945. The house stands in 100 acres of parkland at the heart of a 4,000-acre estate.

Life in a cottage

Both the title and the house will eventually pass to Lady Anne, but for the next few months her surroundings will be far from stately. So that she can be close at hand to discuss the modernisation with her architect and builder, she has moved into a small cottage in the village at Everingham.

"I like the Yorkshire countryside. It is very good for hunting and next season I plan to hunt with the Middleton," she went on. "I suppose my sisters will be coming to stay with me from time to time but I have not yet started seeking staff."

Then Lady Anne drove off in her new Swedish shooting brake.

Body found in canal

THE BODY of a Seaton Ross man was found in Pocklington Canal on Saturday.

Police today named him as Mr Dennis Duerdon, aged 35, a self-employed builder, married with two children.

Mr Duerdon, of Duermill Crest, Mill Lane, Seaton Ross, was reported missing from his home on Friday.

His body was found by a police underwater search team near Hagg Bridge, Sutton-on-Derwent.

Police said there were no suspicious circumstances and the Hull Coroner had been informed.

Builder's body in canal

The body of a Seaton Ross builder was found in Pocklington Canal over the weekend after an extensive search by a police underwater unit and local volunteers.

Mr Dennis Duerden, aged 35, of Duermill Crest, Mill Lane, was reported missing by his wife on Friday evening. Police concentrated their search for him in the area of the canal after finding his car parked close to the waterway in a layby along the B1228 Melbourne to York road.

The police search on Friday evening revealed nothing, but was resumed at daylight on Saturday morning, helped by about 10 local residents. Mr Duerden's body was recovered by the Humberside Police underwater search unit who were examining a stretch of the 5ft deep canal.

The body was found at about 1.30 p.m., and 60 yards south of Hagg Bridge, Sutton-on-Derwent. Mr Duerden, who was married and with two young children, was a partner in a building firm with Mr John Pears, also of Seaton Ross.

A police spokesman said there were no suspicious circumstances surrounding the death. The North Humberside Coroner has been informed.

There has been plenty of colour in the lives of a Seaton Ross couple who celebrated 60 years of marriage this week — and were presented with a colour television to mark the occasion.

Mr and Mrs Richard Wiles — Mr Wiles is aged 94 years and Mrs Wiles 86 — of Heatherdene, Mill Lane, Seaton Ross, married soon after the first world war, when Mr Wiles had lost a leg. This did not deter him from an active working life, and when he retired from his last job with the Air Ministry at Melbourne airfield some 30 years ago, it was at the full retirement age of 65.

After that he still rode his cycle until he was well into his eighties, but at the age of 89 his other leg was amputated, and since then he has been largely confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs Wiles concentrated on bringing up their three daughters, who all still live in the area. The daughters, now Mrs Elsie Lewiss, Mrs

Eva Murr and Mrs Joyce Senior, have expanded the family to include five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Mr and Mrs Wiles have been connected with the area all their lives. Mr Wiles was born at Holme on Spalding Moor and Mrs Wiles at Everingham. They have lived at Seaton Ross for some 40 years.

The TV set was donated by Mr Martin Vallance, head of the electrical retail chain based in Leeds, after he had been approached by the British Limbless Ex-Servicemen's Association. The association's voluntary welfare organiser for Humberside, Mr E. Hebblethwaite of Bridlington, who made the approach to Mr Vallance, is seen in the picture with Mr and Mrs Wiles. ## Open verdict on builder in beck

An open verdict was recorded at the inquest of a Seaton Ross father-of-two who was found in a beck near Sutton-on-Derwent last month.

Mr Dennis Edward Duerden, aged 35, a builder, of Mill Lane, had drowned, but the North Humberside Coroner, Mr Trevor Green, said there was no evidence of foul play, no evidence that he intended to take his own life, and no evidence of how he came to be in the water.

Mr James Duerden, of Mains Cottage, Seaton

Ross, said that on February 17 he was informed that his brother was missing and went to Sutton-on-Derwent where his car had been seen parked in a layby.

The police were alerted and a search was organised. It continued the next day, when at 2 p.m. Mr Duerden was called to a field near Hagg Bridge, three miles from Sutton-on-Derwent, and saw the body of his brother, which had been taken from the water.

Mr Duerden said his brother had been off work for five or six weeks with a nervous stomach, but had been recovering. He was not a swimmer.

Mrs Johanna Duerden confirmed to the court her husband had been ill, but seemed to be getting better. He had no financial worries, and the business was doing well.

A pathologist, Dr. I. Chorlton, said in a statement that death was due to drowning.

Church crowded for builder's funeral

The St. Edmund's Church, Seaton Ross, was filled to capacity for the funeral service of Mr Dennis Edward Duerden, who was found dead recently.

Mr Duerden, aged 35, of Duermill Crest, Mill Lane, Seaton Ross, a master builder, had lived in the village for 20 years. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

SEED CLEANING PLANT OPENS AT SEATON ROSS

EAST RIDING farmers are at the moment harvesting one of their best wheat and barley crops for years but yields such as they are enjoying in 1964 may become commonplace now that a giant seed cleaning plant has been erected in a hangar at the disused Seaton Ross aerodrome, near Pocklington.

To produce good crops you need good seed and the plant installed by Summit Seeds (Northern) Ltd., of Edward Webb & Sons Ltd. of Stourbridge, Worcester will produce the best.

The plant, which has cost many thousands of pounds, will reap benefits not only for its owners but for the agricultural farmers of the East Riding too. Astute businessmen, they know that the dearest is the cheapest in the long run and fewer stone of seed of the finest quality is needed per acre.

GREATLY IMPRESSED

Farmers from all parts of the East Riding visited Seaton Ross last Friday to see the new seed plant in operation and they were greatly impressed.

Said one, "This will mean that we can sow the best and expect the best. It is one of the finest things that has come in to our midst in the East Riding."

The plant, with its 30 odd electric motors varying from one to 10 horse power, sifts the barley and wheat seed fed into its intake hopper and churns out the best. For Summit Seeds Ltd. want only the best.

The firm's representatives will buy only the best barley and wheat seed for farmers in the area and a drying plant which has also cost many thousands of pounds will remove all moisture before seed goes to the cleaning plant.

Thomas Robinson & Son Ltd. of Rochdale were the main contractors for the erection of the plant which consists of two identical but independent 4 tons per hour processing installations mounted on the same platform has an intake capacity of 40 tons per hour. The seed is delivered in open trucks arriving direct from the field.

The Ferrell seed cleaning plant for the Seaton Ross factory was supplied by J. Booth and Son Ltd., of Canal Road, Congleton.

An intake hopper, with variable speed worm discharger, feeds the intake elevator which lifts the seed to an intake weigher, from where it is fed into a rubble separator, where all the rubble and rough from the field is separated from the seed, aspirated and bagged off.

300 STILLAGES

The seed is then either elevated to four 20-ton capacity timber storage bins for future use or (if the bins are full) 30 cwt. stillages are used. There are approximately 300 of these stillages in the plant. As the 20 ton capacity timber storage bins are emptied, fork lift trucks convey the stillages to an elevator via a tippler made by Midland Industries Ltd., Wolverhampton, feeding a small tipping hopper to restock the main storage bins and thus into the process plant.

The bins are equally divided so that two hold wet seed and two hold dry seed. The wet seed has now to be dried and this process begins when the seed is fed along a worm conveyor and spouted at 6 tons per hour, then raised by elevator to an Alvan Blanch cascade drier where the seed is thoroughly dried at a temperature of 120°F.

From the drier the grain is elevated at 6 tons per hour to another weigher, and passes into the plant for the next process, as stated, or is fed back to the dry bins or stillages for storage. Seed from either the driers at 6 tons per hour, or dry storage bins at 4 tons per hour, is fed into the plant direct by means of worm conveyors and elevators.

It then passes into a Kay-Bee De-awner which thoroughly threshes the seed. From this de-awner the seed is transferred to an American Ferrel Clipper which separates chaff, straw, dirt, scalpings etc. from the cleaned grain and all these "screenings" are fed into hopper bottomed metal stillages.

SEPARATES SEEDS

The clean grain from the clipper is fed into three-high Robinson ultra indented cylinders which separate all the large seeds from the small. The clean seed can then be either stored in stillages, bins, or alternatively can be passed through a seed dresser. On one of the two plants this is a plan-tector type and on the other an Aagrano Wiersum type.

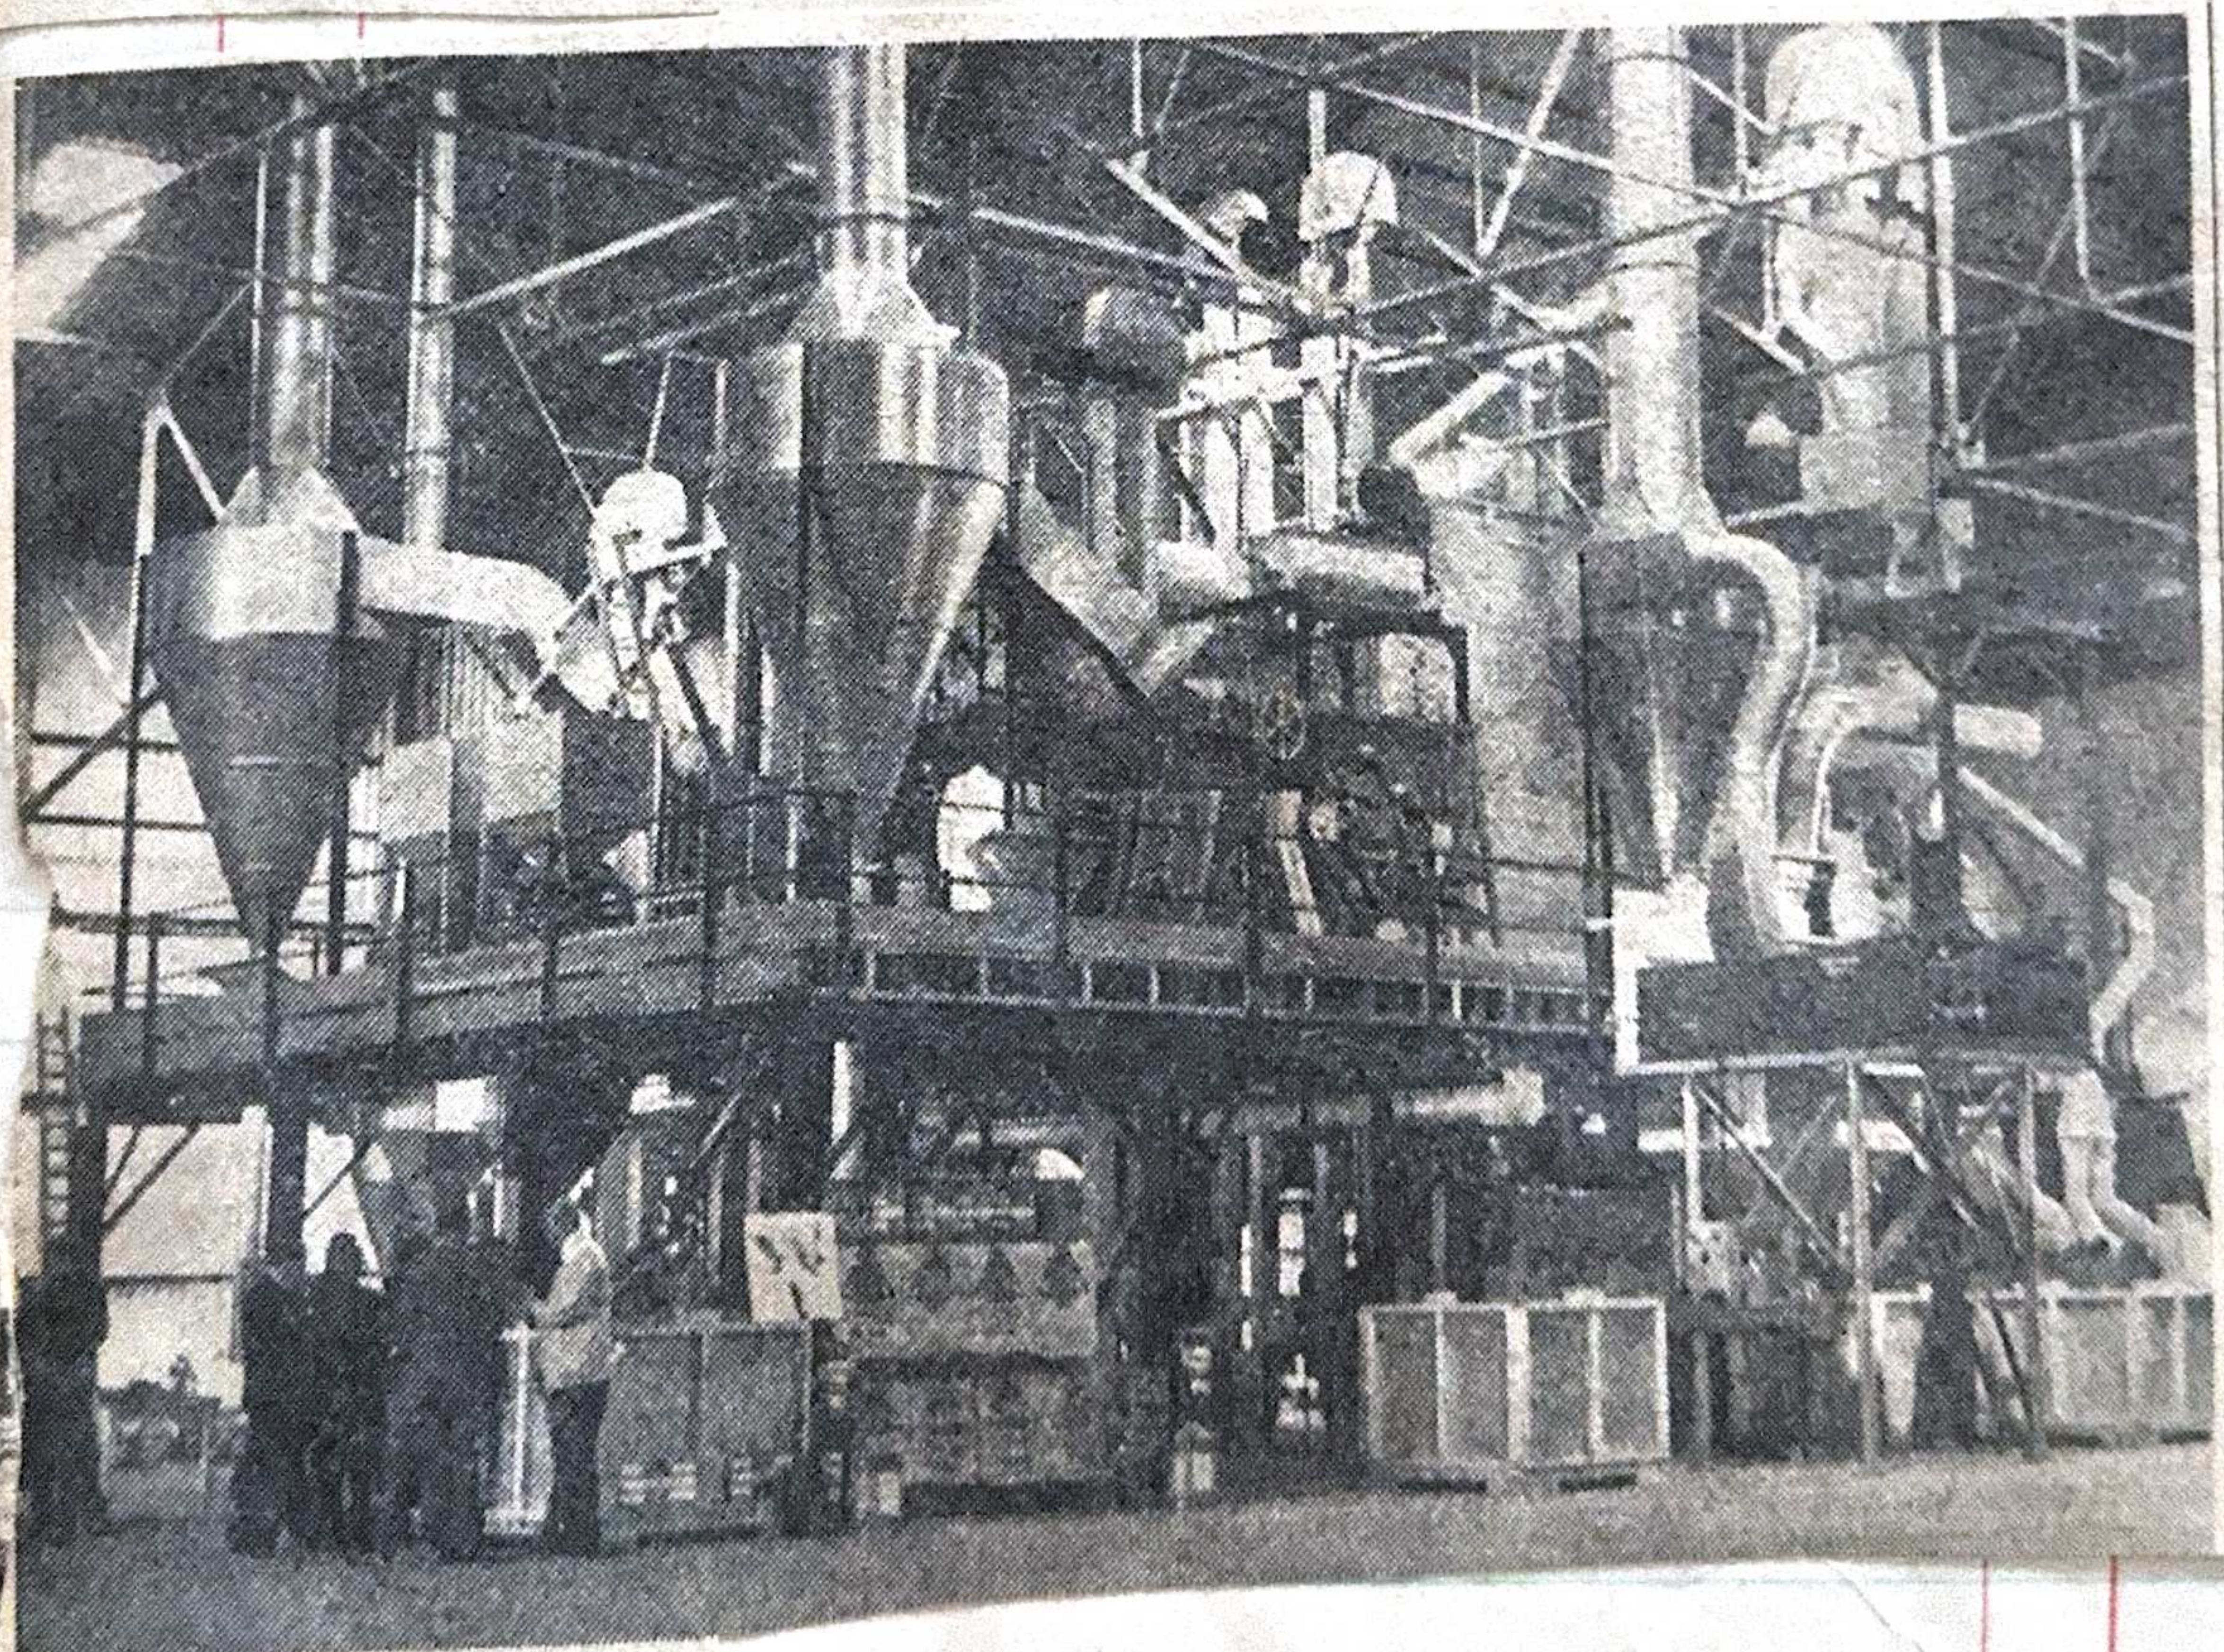

From the dresser the seed is elevated to a further automatic weigher from where it is bagged on a packing machine which is suitable for "valve" type bags. This is a much quicker process and eliminates the need for sewing. The bags used are made from four ply paper and have a capacity of 1 cwt.

An important point is that complete exhaust systems are maintained on all machines throughout the plant, the exhaust from the Powder Dresser being kept separate from the main exhaust.

Mr L. S. Foster, General Manager of Summit Seeds (Northern) Ltd., will be pleased to show any local farmers over the new plant if they contact him in advance.

The parish church at Bielby, near Pocklington, which is being renovated by parishioners.

Church decoration by vicar at Bielby

THE Vicar of Everingham, the Rev. Henry Stapleton, has become a part-time building worker for the next three weeks. With the majority of the 250 people in the village of Bielby, near Pocklington, he is renovating the ancient church of St. Giles'.

"I've never had an experience of this kind of work before, but I am thoroughly enjoying decorating and cleaning out the gutters and drains," he said last night.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE

It is hoped to end the work in time for the visit of the Bishop of Selby, Dr. D. Sargent, for Confirmation in the church on June 30.

It has been, while chipping away old plaster and stone-work that he has made an important discovery.

During the late 13th or early 14th Centuries, the building, part of which is Norman, was cut in half.

Mr. Stapleton believes that the north-east side was demolished, at a time when Bielby contracted in size.

Arches, blocked up with stone, have been found within the wall.

Supporting them are four pillars. The original red painted patterns, although faded, can still be seen on the stone.

"There certainly seems to have been a parallel aisle on the other side," said Mr. Stapleton. The hidden wall is being faced over once more with new plaster.

The church was last decorated and structurally overhauled in 1890.

As well as giving their time and labour, the people of Bielby are also trying to raise £100 to pay for building materials.

Following the resignation of the chairman of the Parish Meeting, Mr. D. Johnson, no other chairman can be found, and the lack of interest has meant that no Parish meeting has yet been held this year.

Heading a team of parishioners, the Rev. Henry Stapleton, the Vicar of Everingham, has stripped plaster from the walls, cleaned out gutters, and scrubbed the floor.

RENOVATING HIS CHURCH 1963.

Earlier this year the villagers of Bielby were busy renovating their parish church of St. Giles. In charge of the operations was the vicar of Everingham, the Rev. Henry St. pleton, seen here busy with chisel and mallet, who worked alongside his parishioners. Some valuable historical discoveries were made during the renovation.

SEATON ROSS BEREAVEMENT

It was with sadness that we learned of the sudden death of Mr. Carter. We extend our sympathy to his widow at this time in her sad bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter came to Seaton Ross in 1941 and Mr. Carter was connected with Aerodrome Construction work and after the war with similar work on the railways until his retirement. A cockney by birth, Mr. Carter had been a sidesman of St. Martins-in-the-Fields during the incumbency of the Reverend Dick Shepherd. However after moving North he and his wife quickly adapted themselves to Yorkshire and village life, and Mr. Carter continued to be a sidesman at Seaton Ross, until he was unable to do so through ill health.

May he rest in peace.

THE RADIANT BRIDE

THE vicar of Seaton Ross with Everingham, the Rev. Henry Edward Champneys Stapleton, was married at St. Peter's Church, Rockland, Norwich last Saturday. His bride was Miss Mary Deborah Sapwell, younger daughter of the Rev. B. S. Sapwell and Mrs Sapwell of The Rectory, Rockland All Saints, Attleborough, Norfolk.

The bridegroom is the only son of Mr and Mrs Stapleton of The Cottage, Hutton Boscel, Scarborough.

Given away by her brother-in-law, Dr. Peter Steel, the bride wore a full-length Empire line gown of oyster satin with a long train. Her full-length veil of Brussels lace was loaned by the bridegroom's family. She carried a bouquet of tea roses, freesias and chincherees.

Seven bridesmaids were in attendance all wearing full-dresses of oyster satin with gold sashes and headpieces of gold and cream, in Victorian posies of roses and chincherees.

They were Sarah Steel, Caroline Steel (nieces of the bride), Caroline Gibson (niece of the bridegroom), Mary Percival (bride's godchild), Fiona Seddon, Helen Anelay (bridegroom's god-children) and Sarah Royle.

The bridegroom's nephew, Nicholas Gibson, was page-boy.

The ceremony was conducted by the bride's father (the Rev. B. S. Sapwell), The Bishop of Norwich, Dr. Launcelot Fleming, the Rev. R. S. Gibson (bridegroom's brother-in-law) and the Rev. James Owen.

The best man was Rev. Frank Teller (friend of the bridegroom), and the groomsmen were Wing Commander (rtd.) Basil Champneys, Rev. Anthony Footit, Mr David Charles, Mr Michael Ferry, Mr Michael Morrice, Mr Adam Pyke, Mr Anthony Royle, and Mr James Scott (all friends of the bride and bridegroom).

The organists were Mr John Phoenix and Mr Frank Thompson.

After a reception at the bride's home the couple left for a continental honeymoon, the bride travelling in a raspberry pink two piece with matching hat and black accessories.

EAST RIDING VICAR IS JACK OF ALL TRADES

THE Vicar of Seaton Ross with Eyingham and Bielby and Harswell, the Rev. Henry Stapleton, has become a part-time Jack-of-all-trades for the next three weeks. With the majority of the 250 people in the village of Bielby, he is renovating the ancient church of St. Giles.

"I've never had an experience of this kind of work before, but I am thoroughly enjoying decorating and cleaning out the gutters and drains," he said.

It is hoped to end the work in time for the visit of the Bishop of Selby, Dr. D. Sargent, for Confirmation in the church on June 30.

It has been, while chipping away old plaster and stone-work that he has made an important discovery.

During the late 13th or early 14th Centuries, the building, part of which is Norman, was cut in half.

Mr. Stapleton believes that the north-east side was demolished, at a time when Bielby contracted in size.

Arches, blocked up with stone, have been found within the wall. Supporting them are four pillars. The original red painted patterns, although faded, can still be seen on the stone.

"There certainly seems to have been a parallel aisle on the other side," said Mr. Stapleton. The hidden wall is being faced over once more with new plaster.

The church was last decorated and structurally overhauled in 1890.

As well as giving their time and labour, the people of Bielby are also trying to raise £100 to pay for building materials.

Following the resignation of the chairman of the Parish Meeting, Mr D. Johnson, no other chairman can be found, and the lack of interest has meant that no Parish meeting has yet been held this year.

PRIESTS' TRANSFERS CAUSES PROTEST

FR. P. STOREY, Market Weighton's popular Roman Catholic parish priest, who is likely to be moved to Stokesley, near Middlesbrough, says he gets on so well with Market Weighton people that he has no wish to leave the area.

He has been parish priest for 4½ years and during that time a £14,000 Roman Catholic Church has been built.

THE BISHOP

Fr. Storey said this week, "I certainly have no wish to leave Market Weighton, but if this is what the Bishop wishes then I shall have to obey. I like the people here and they like me. We get on very well together and during my period we have built a new church in the town."

"So far I have only received indications that I am leaving, as the Bishop of Middlesbrough is away at present, but I have no doubt that I shall be going to Stokesley."

At present Fr. Storey is attempting to persuade the education authorities to construct a new Roman Catholic School for the area.

"I have no doubt that I shall get on well with the people at Stokesley," he added.

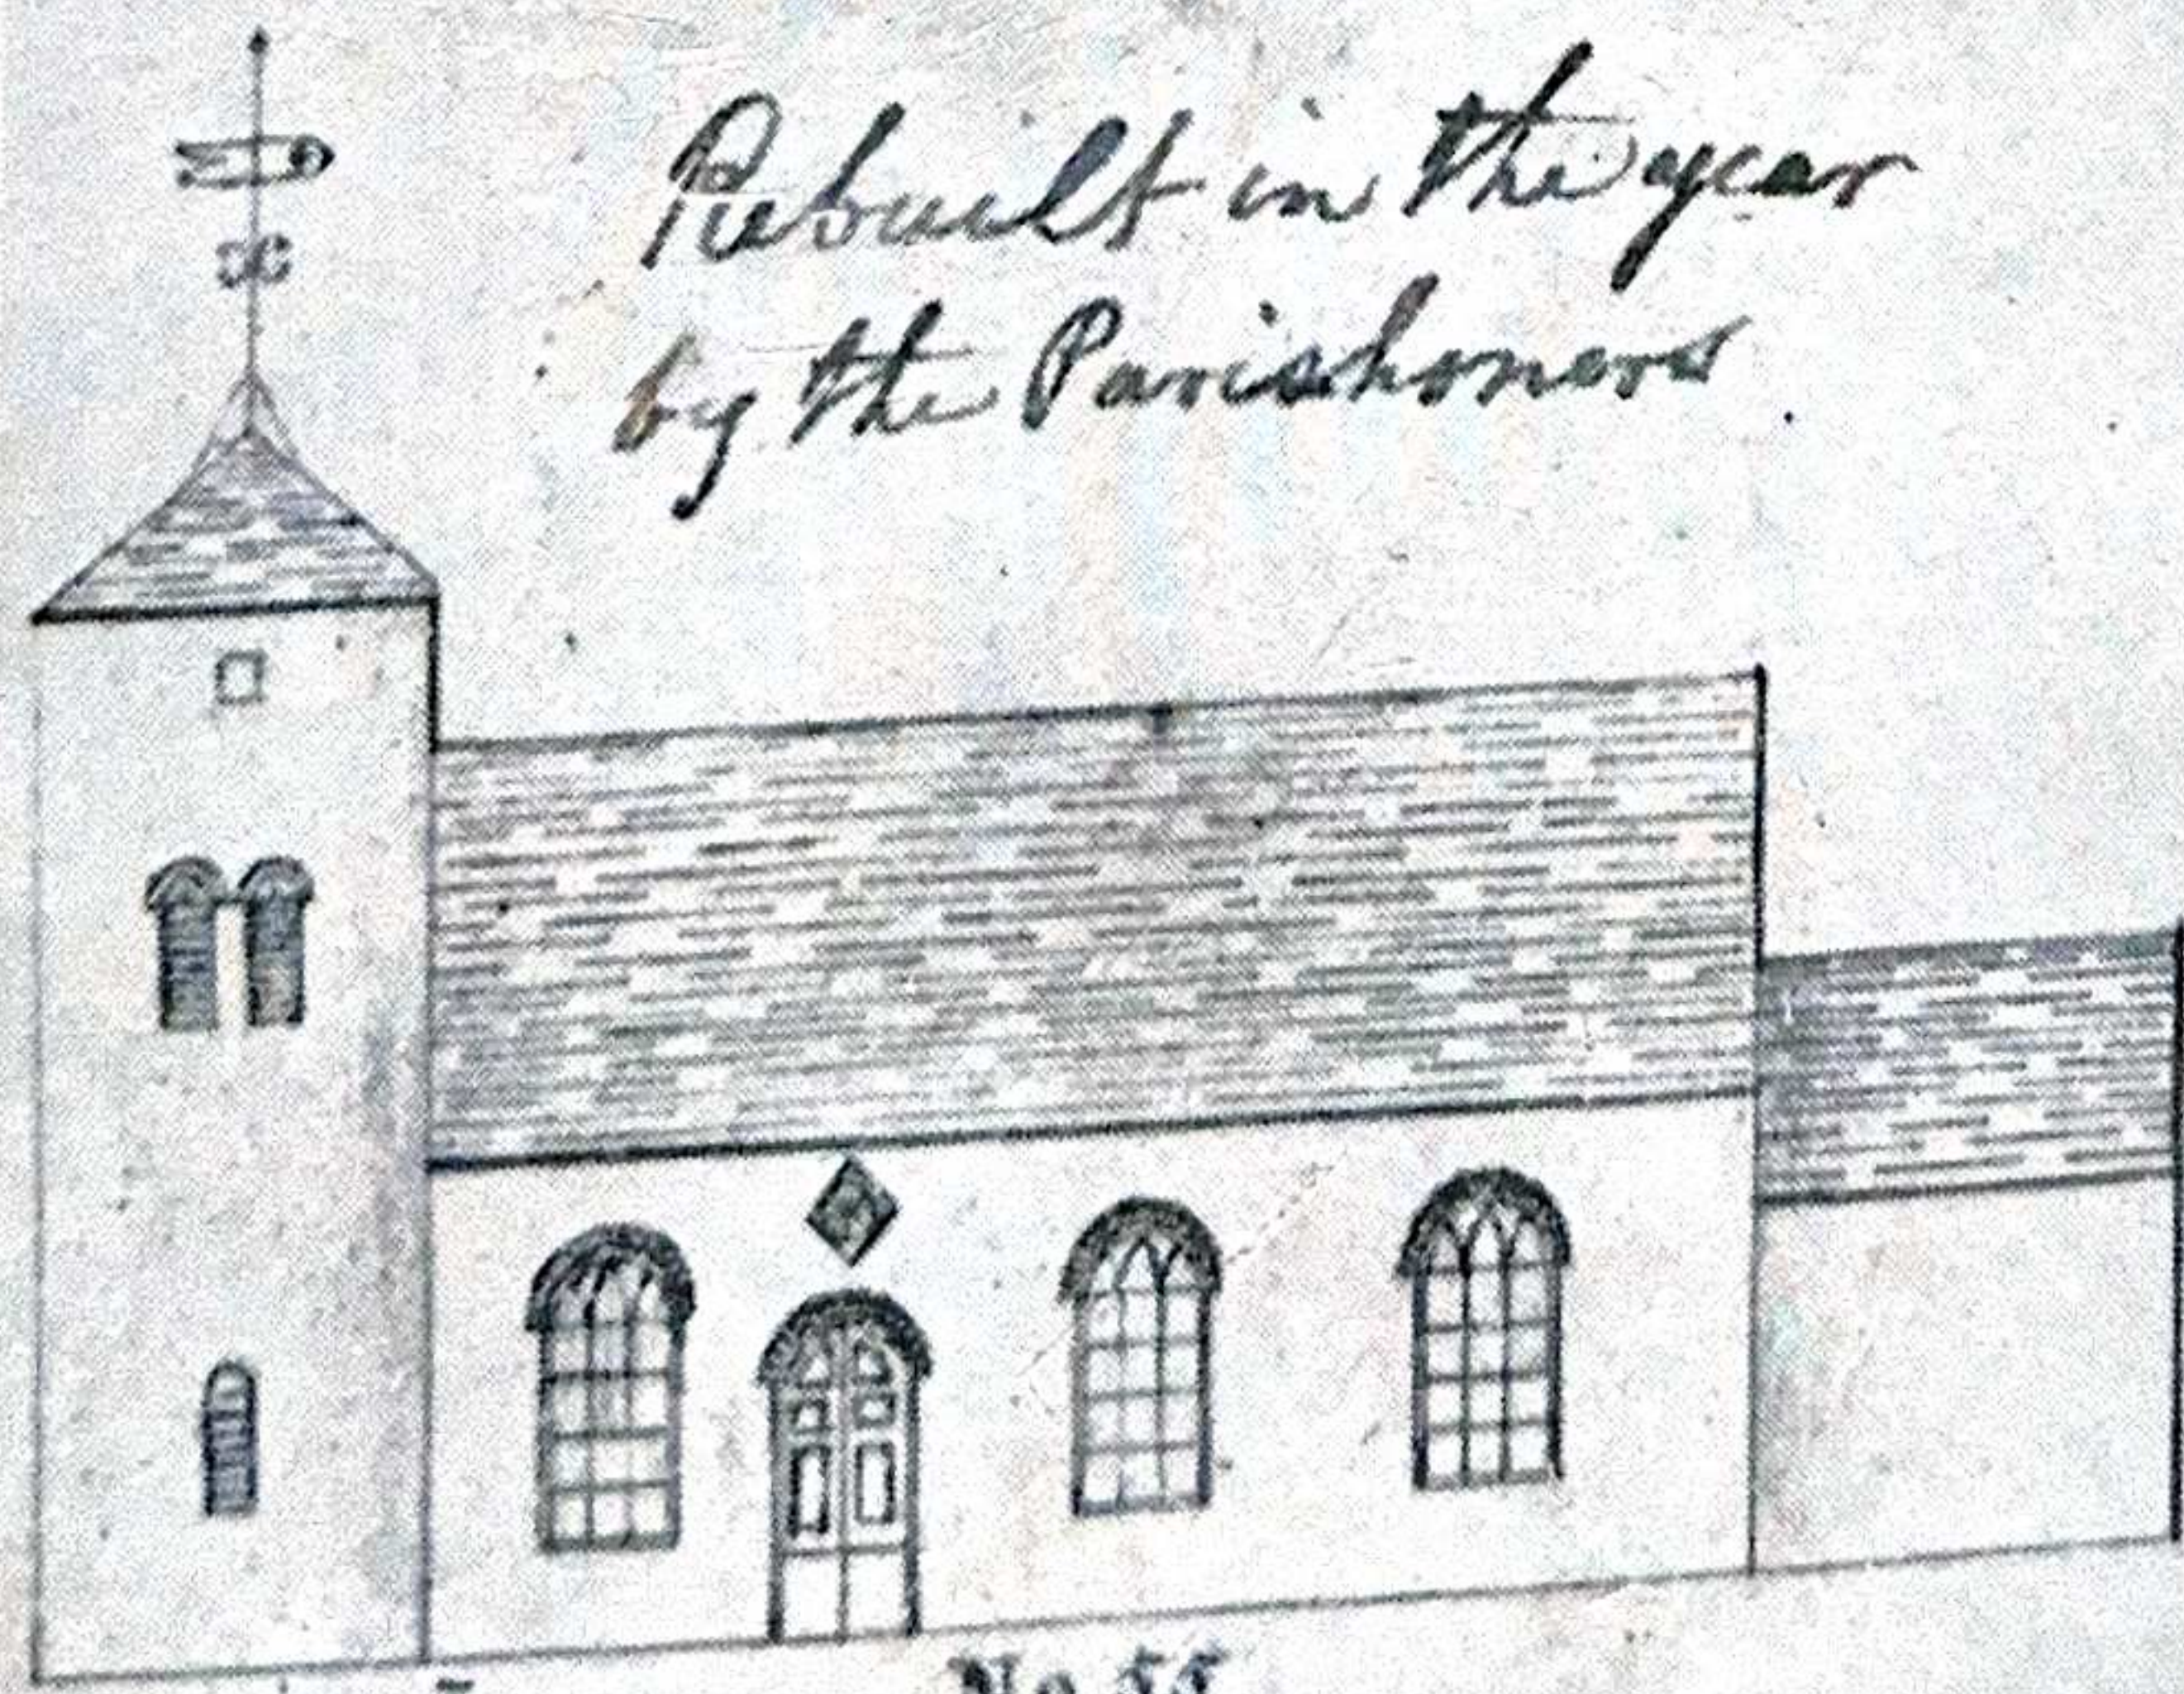

The change has also roused the feelings of parishioners at Stokesley, near Middlesbrough, for they do not wish to part with Fr. J. J. McDonnell, who has been their priest for 29 years and who is moving to Market Weighton.

On Monday evening the parishioners held a protest meeting, but eventually decided not to "fight the Bishop's decision."

"FATHER MAC"

Known as "Father Mac" in the town, Fr. McDonnell is not likely to move to Market Weighton before next month.

"I certainly have not packed my bags yet," commented Fr. Storey this week. "I expect it will be some time even after the Bishop comes home as he will have other, more important work to get on with before arriving at me."

Mother finds 3-year-old son dead in sewage bed

THREE - YEAR - OLD
Richard Hesketh was found dead in a sewage bed by his mother yesterday.

Mrs. Peggy Hesketh, of East Farm, Seaton Ross, near Pocklington, became anxious when Richard who was playing in the farmyard, wandered off.

She began searching for him. She found Richard about an hour later lying in a sewage bed which adjoined the farm. It is believed Richard crawled through a fence to get there. He is thought to have drowned.

She rushed with him in her arms to a nearby agricultural dispatching station where workmen made an unsuccessful attempt to revive the boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Hesketh have one other child, a three-week-old daughter.
